

LARGE SNOWFLAKES BURST OUT

Large snowflakes burst out
of the laden sky and drop down
profusely in open parachutes.

Snowflakes land upon the cragged bare arms of trees
and the fully clothed darker pines.

And entomb the roofs of houses in white.
The land's conquered and muted.
It stops being its old self for a while. There's not a breath of wind. And the hot sun's nowhere to be seen.

A gleaming snowy landscape encased in a large glass bell jar glazed
with a wintry shade of grey.

Dinh Le Doan
Quebec, Canada