

LIKE SNOW

I, like the snow, have melted in your arms.
You, like a sponge, absorbed me.

Must I wring you out or make you sweat
to recover who I am?

One of us has made a big mistake
or was it both, as both of us are soaked.

Florence Sage
Oregon, USA